Community Chest Drive Will Open Oct. 18 For 10 Days

On October 18 the local branch of the Community Chest will begin its drive for $2100 to support relief agencies in Campbell.

W. R. Coupland, vice-president of the Campbell Community Council, is manager of the campaign and he most earnestly urges loyal Campbell citizens to support the Community Chest in its worthy cause. "Never have we needed the funds so greatly as we do this year," he declares. "Unemployment is so widespread, and wages so low that suffering this winter will be intense unless the Community Chest intervenes."

The local council plans to contribute $1400 to the relief funds, when the drive is completed. This sum will be used to give food and help to needy children in the schools, to furnish food, medicine, and other essentials of living to depression-stricken individuals of this community.

The remainder of the sum $700, will be sent to the Santa Clara County Community Chest, where it will be used in relief work over the county for the Salvation Army, the Childrens' Aid Society and the Y. W. C. A.

CHESTER ROWELL, CHRONICLE EDITOR, TO TALK AT HOOVER RALLY FRIDAY

Chamber of Commerce To Discuss Police, Fire

Methods of coordinating the local police patrol service with the fire department in order to maintain a central signal system to summon either police or fire aid in an emergency will be discussed at the next meeting of the Campbell Chamber of Commerce on Nov. 1.

It is hoped that a campaign may be reopened to set up a police district in Campbell, for no system of financing the two local patrolmen has been satisfactorily worked out.

Three years ago a plan for a police district failed, but Chamber of Commerce officials believe that public sentiment has veered about.

Dissatisfaction with fire district methods now functioning and urgent demands of the citizens for better equipment has caused the local officials to schedule a discussion of both police and fire systems for the coming meetings.

Wendell Thomas, president of the Santa Clara County Consolidated Chamber of Commerce will deliver a talk on "The Value of the Chamber of Commerce to the Community." It is an open meeting.

A brief survey of the developments of the prune pool work was made by W. W. Lester.

Earnestly pleading for assistance from the Grange in the coming Community Chest, W. R. Coupland manager, of the local campaign, spoke on the great need for funds this year. He reported that funds would be used entirely for supplying food and clothing to the most needy, since local agencies such as Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls were already provided for.

Don't fail us now--

The Community Chest needs your support more than ever before.

Two-thirds of the Campbell quota, $2100, (this is $150 less than last year) will be set aside for emergency relief.

The share of every other beneficiary of the Chest has been reduced. But the relief fund has been raised from the $1000 found inadequate last year to $1400 for the season of unemployment now at hand.

But what of the efficiency of the Community Chest?

The success of the Community Chest is due to its basic principle of unpaid cooperative effort in the drive.

Cost of administration through the year is only 4 1/2 % of the funds collected and distributed. No other form of relief work on a large scale is as efficient as this.

Some friends of yours will be helped by the Community Chest.

Some friends of yours will be out soliciting.

By giving what you can, and by a pleasant smile for whoever calls, you will be doubly helpful

Columbus Colors Decorate Luncheon Of Stitching Club

A Columbus Day motif furnished color for a luncheon given to the Ada Rebekah Stitching club at the LaBarbara home on Wedgewood avenue by Mrs. Horace Lea and Miss Josephine LaBarbara.

American and Italian flags and their colors of red, white and blue, and red, white and green decorated the house and the luncheon table. Lovely fall flowers added a touch of daintiness. The table, set for twenty-eight, was placed outdoors in the south walled-in garden. Centerpieces were baskets of red and white grapes. Truly nautical place cards were made of ships supported in shining red apples. The menu carried out the Italian-American colors.

Among the guests was Mrs. Robert Johnson of Pasadena, a former member of the club and its first president.

SHIFTING GEARS

The speech of Governor Roosevelt on the railroad question is a virtual repudiation of the strategy which the Democratic orators used at the beginning of the present campaign. At the outset, it will be remembered, we were regaled with reference to the "forgotten man." President Hoover, we were informed by the opposition, had been seeking to help only the big corporations, the big banks, the railroads and other octopi of big business and the rest of us were "forgotten men."

But suddenly all of that has changed. In his Salt Lake City speech Governor Roosevelt informed us that "the problem of the railroads is the problem of each and every one of us." The owners of the railroads, he declared, are not "the great railway magnates sitting in luxurious offices and clubs," but "the people throughout the country who have a savings bank account or an insurance policy, or in some measure an ordinary checking account." Continuing, Governor Roosevelt said:

"When you put money in the bank or pay that insurance premium, you are buying an interest in the railroads. Some $2,000,000,000 more are held by churches, hospitals, charitable organizations, colleges and similar institutions as endowment. The remaining bonds are scattered far and wide among a host of people whose life savings have been invested in this standard American industry."

Later on in his address Governor Roosevelt took occasion to approve of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Here is noticeable a complete change in the Democratic campaign. A few weeks ago we were told that this was a battle of the corporations and special interests against the "forgotten man." Now we are informed that the "forgotten man" has an interest in railroads and banks and other institutions which were supposedly in the hands of the plutocrats.

In the meantime where are Senator Wheeler and the other Democratic big brothers of the "forgotten man" campaign? Governor Roosevelt is reported as having come to the conclusion that the election is now "in the bag" so to speak. Evidently Messrs. Norris, Wheeler, Dill, Huey Long, et al, once in the forefront of the Rooseveltian battle before the good governor got the nomination, are in the bag too, and the string has been pulled taut.

At any rate we are pleased to note the amount of good Republican doctrine in Governor Roosevelt's Salt Lake speech.

A DIRTY TRICK

Motoring about the valley, this writer has all too frequently observed, just within the borders of well-kept orchards, gunny bags whose flimsy texture ill conceals their stuffing of old cans, bottles, garbage, and other rubbish.

These little offerings are not placed there by the rancher on whose property they are to be seen. No. They are cast there from an automobile driven by a town dweller who is too mean and cheap to pay for rubbish disposal service. It is the practice of this breed to hoard up their trash until they have accumulated one or more bags of it, load it into the family automobile, and dump it out into the first convenient orchard. Rather than have his ranch looking like a city dump, the orchardist will, of course, dispose of the other fellow's trash—and he probably has murder in his heart when he does it.

WORTH REPEATING

Those who think the end of progress has been reached would do well to recollect these words of the late Charles Steinmetz, greatest of inventors:

"We call this the electrical age, but it isn't. The electrical age has hardly begun. In that age electricity . . . will do a multitude of things of which we have never dreamed. For the electrical age is yet to come. And it will be a great age."

WHAT A MAN!

In his Hollywood speech Franklin D. Roosevelt made an appeal for better public morals and a greater faith in God. This from the white hope of Tammany Hall!

THE DANGEROUS DRIVING AGE

A serious responsibility rests on parents whose sons and daughters, under the age of 20, drive automobiles. It is their duty to impress upon budding men and women the vital necessity for care, courtesy and obedience to traffic rules at all times.

The most dangerous age for drivers is under 20, according to E. E. Robinson, secretary of the National Bureau of Casualty & Surety Underwriters. Out of every thousand drivers under the age of 20 last year, 39 were involved in accidents. From 20 to 29, 36 drivers out of 1,000 had mishaps; there were 27 in the ages 30 to 39; 20 in the ages of 40 to 49, and 18 out of 1,000 in the ages of 50 and over.

Automobile public liability and property damage insurance rates are wholly under the control of their policy-holders. Stock casualty companies have established by statistics that the record for drivers under 20 last year was 39 per cent worse than the average; from 20 to 29 it was 29 per cent worse; from 30 to 39, 3.6 per cent better than the average; from 40 to 49 it was 29 per cent better and in the ages of 50 and over, 36 per cent better than the average. In the ages under 30, accident experience was 64.7 per cent worse than among drivers beyond that age.

There were 26,410 drivers under the age of 18 involved in accidents, of which 1,270 were in fatal accidents and 25,140 in non-fatal accidents. From 18 to 24 there were 326,690 drivers in accidents which killed 13,000 persons and injured 313,690.

If parents will constantly emphasize to their children the necessity of safe driving and obedience to traffic regulations, it will be reflected in a diminishing toll of deaths, injury and property damage now exacted by the motor car on streets and highways.

THE MACHINE

In a recent article, Dr. James S. Thomas, of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, analyzed the machine's effect on mankind.

Dr. Thomas' deductions are quite different from those of the critics of the machine, who blame it for all the ills of mankind from the flood to the World war. He shows that it constitutes the basis of our modern economic world—that it has liberated men from arduous tasks, not enslaved them; that during most of its brief history, it has created employment, not unemployment; that it has cut down accidents, not increased them; that it makes for wealth, comfort and a finer civilization, not a poorer one.

During a recent period in American history, 1,957,000 people were displaced from jobs because of increased mechanical efficiency—and at the same time new trades and professions, largely resulting from the machine, gave jobs to 2,537,000 directly and 2,000,000 indirectly. In 140 years we increased our national income from four hundred million to eighty billion dollars, and our national wealth from five hundred million to three hundred and seventy-five billion dollars—because of the machine.

The machine, after all, is simply a medium to make use of natural forces. It is part of evolution—an inevitable step in the march of the world from the stone age to the present and to whatever may be in the future. And, after the debits and credits have all been entered, and the cancellations made, it is found that the machine has been the friend, not the enemy, of "common man."

COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT GAINING

Governor Wilson of Vermont recently pointed out that the prosperity of the nation is largely dependent on the prosperity of agriculture, and said: "Only by united effort can dairy farmers secure their just rights . . . cooperation is absolutely essential."

"If farmers do not have some profit for their labor and investment, the public cannot be assured an adequate milk supply at a fair price for long."

What Governor Wilson says goes for all other farm producers, whether they handle cotton, grain, sheep or fruit. Unorganized agriculture means depressed agriculture, even when general business conditions are good. The cooperative movement is the farmers' answer to conditions that have become steadily worse in recent years.

There is no more encouraging sign in the country today than the fact that the cooperative movement has been steadily gaining, both in size and scope. Hundreds of thousands of farmers have realized that their very existence depends upon their joining with their fellows to work in the common interest. Agriculture is on the way back and the speed with which it travels will depend mainly on how soon those farmers who are unorganized at present enlist in cooperatives.

P.T.A. Hears Reports On Student Health

The percentage of underweight children in Campbell grammar school is 50 per cent less than it was last year, according to Mrs. A. C. Girard, school nurse, who made a report at the regular meeting of the Parent Teachers' association held at the school Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 4, and presided over by Mrs. Harry Rediker, president.

Reports were made by Miss Rowena Farman and Miss Girard at the meeting. Committees for the year's work were appointed by Mrs. Rediker.

Mrs. Calvin Bohnett and Mrs. S. N. Hedegard were appointed chairmen of the membership drive. Publicity will be taken care of by Mrs. Guy Farley. Mrs. W. W. Lester and Mrs. M. H. Farnham were named for the hospitality committee. Mrs. H. H. Allen was placed in charge of pins and publications.

An investigating committee to look into the cases concerning the needy children was appointed, consisting of Mrs. W. I. Merrill, Mrs. J. B. Collins, Mrs. William Van Every and Mrs. William Porter.

Mrs. P. L. Wisdom, Palo Alto, president of the sixth district of the P. T. A., spoke at Tuesday's meeting, urging that the Campbell club join the county consolidation. Mrs. G. Clark, of Palo Alto, also addressed the meeting.

Refreshments were served after the business meeting concluded by the executive board of the P. T. A. which includes Mrs. Harry Rediker, Mrs. W. Van Every, Mrs. S. G. Rice, Mrs. G. E. Jeffrey, Mrs. S. N. Hedegard, Mrs. Fred Nichols, and Mrs. I. R. Abbott.

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be held Nov. 1, at which time the eighth grade students will comprise the refreshment committee.

MRS. R. E. STUBBE GIVES DINNER AND BIRTHDAY PARTY

The birthday table was charmingly appointed with flowers and the dainty birthday cake.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Stubbe, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cooke, Mrs. Mary Stubbe and Bob Stubbe.

duets, "Cavalry March," and "Fantasy from Oberon."

A highly diverting peisode of the evening was the presentation of two readings by Wallace Murray, San Jose, who first impersonated a Jewish woman and second an Italian fruit peddler.

A message from L. J. Taylor, master of the National Grange, was read to the audience by Mrs. McChesney.

The beautiful and fitting climax of the evening's entertainment was the series of tableaux given by the East Palo Alto Grange, depicting flowers, fruits, and grains of the harvest time. These tableaux were clarified by Mrs. Rose Hanger, representing Flora, Mrs. H. C. Skow, representing Pomona, and Mrs. Lawrence Hendricks, representing Ceres.

The Rev. Joseph H. Bennett gave the invocation and the Rev. C. E. Irons gave the benediction at the meeting.

BOOKS

Beulah Marie Dix, who began writing immediately after her graduation from Smith college, is the author of a number of historical novels, which have long been favorites with boys and girls of high school age. In recent years she has been writing for the moving pictures in Hollywood. She is married, but "Who's Who" does not reveal whether or not she has children. Her new book, Pity of God, is a most interesting, even though tragic, story for adult readers. The most tragic figure in the book is a woman, who, while she congratulates herself hourly that she is a successful wife and mother, has really failed in her relations with father, husband, younger brother, her idolized young son, her unattractive little daughter. The way in which each member of the family has tangled himself in an apparently inextricable problem, the startling revelation of the last chapter may make the reader pause to ask, "Could this be?"—but it furnishes the material for an absorbing novel. —Lillian Voge

Three Women, by Faith Baldwin.

Women who do not love their husbands should not have children. At least it is a very dangerous habit. For somehow these thwarted females will wrap themselves around and around their children and their children's children, until death is merciful to these last.

This is the theory expounded by Faith Baldwin in her latest novel.

The theory has produced a novel which leaves the reader with an intense desire to knife all women who try to run their children's lives. Especially does the reader wish to be violent with Louise Sheldon, the particular unloved and unloving woman who causes all the trouble in Three Women.

In spite of the unattractiveness of the chief character the book, however, has some good points. The contrast between the three generations is vivid and true.

The plot is carefully drawn and told, with not too much and not too little description of events.

The language is quite graceful, albeit a little sentimental.

It is fun to read the book, because of this language, and because of the intense satisfaction one gains in seeing the villainess get her just deserts.

The Robin Hood of El Dorado, by Walter Noble Burns.

Joaquin Murieta, the hero of this tale, was a terrible bandit of California's early days. And what could be more fascinating than California's early gold era?

Joaquin was cruel and yet gentle. He murdered, stole, wrecked lives and property, and yet he always defended the lowly, ignorant Mexicans. He hated Americans—felt them intruders. And he was not slow in showing this hate—300 of them fell by his hand.

A tale with an accurate background of California scenery and history is this. It is based on legend and facts about the raging Joaquin and thus is a colorful bit of history.

As good as a novel and more worthwhile, as enthralling as a mystery story, and as blood-curdling as any murder tale, is this California hero's life.

—Evelyn Voge

News of the Week from Campbell Churches

NEIL DECRIES RELIGIOUS SLACKERS

Evangelist J. Lee Neil continued his lectures on "The True Church" Thursday evening at the Community hall. Among other things, he said:

"The 12th chapter of the Revelation gives a brief history of God's true church from the time it was established by and built upon the true rock, Jesus Christ, until its militant career is ended and it triumphs at Christ's second advent. The 17th verse brings us to the remnant, (last) of her seed when, in the last days of her earthly history, the dragon (Satan, vs.9) makes violent warfare against her.

"This verse brings to view two distinct characteristics by which we may now identify the true church.

"1. They keep the commandments of God.

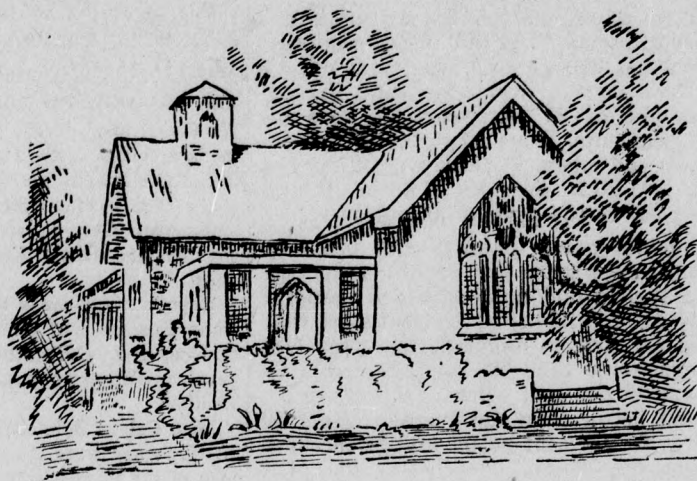

"2. They have the Testimony of Jesus Christ.

"The true church will keep all the commandments of God, including the fourth. To willfully break one, or to teach men to do so, constitutes an individual or a church a rebel against God.

"The true church will have the testimony of Jesus Christ. The angel of prophecy gave John the definition of this term. He said, 'The testimony of Jesus Christ is the spirit of prophecy.' (Rev. 19:10). Then the last true church is to have the exercise of the spirit, or gift of spirit, to guide her safely through the maze of skepticism and the Babylon of confusion until she is ready to meet the son of man when He comes with power and great glory. (1 Cor. 1:4-7).

"Rev. 1:1 reveals how all the revelations of God have come to man. The source is God the Father, then through Jesus Christ, then through the angel, and finally through the prophet to the church, the Holy Spirit operating through the angel and the prophet. It was that the Bible came to man, and the prophecy states that the last church was to have further revelations. This Angel is Gabriel. He is the angel of prophecy (Luke 1:19). He brought the light of heaven to Daniel and revealed to him what his office was (Daniel 10:21). And he says that he is a fellow servant of them who have the testimony of Jesus Christ (Rev. 19:10). Further he states that he is the fellow-servant of them who keep the sayings of the book of revelation. In Rev. 14:6-14 we find the twofold message or sayings of the last true church. Through Angels flying in the midst of heaven 'Saying!', 'Saying!', 'Saying!'. When they finish their sayings Jesus comes to reap the harvest of the earth and the harvest is the end of the world. (Matt. 13:39).

"Then there is a church somewhere on earth today which has fellowship with the angel Gabriel. It behooves us to find that church."

"BLESSED ARE THEY WHO ARE GLAD TO HAVE TIME TO SPARE FOR GOD."

Scout Cub Dens Planned by Mothers

The scout work is forging ahead. The scouts meet at 7:30 p. m. on Thursdays. The Cub work has entered into a new phase of its existence. The full program will be attempted this year. With the assistance of the parents of the boys the den projects will be worked. Already six mothers of the boys have consented to act as den mothers. They are Mrs. E. L. Farnham, Mrs. Floyd Bohnett, Mrs. W. Van Every, Mrs. M. H. Farnham, Mrs. L. L. Robinson and Mrs. T. A. Robinson.

Each den has at least four boys and they are controlled in the dens by a scout boy called the den chief. All work of craftsmanship and passing of tests are accomplished in these dens. The meeting in Fridays will be for checking the progress and for games. It is hoped that keen rivalry will emulate the dens to do big things in cubbing. Next week the full list of the boys in their dens will be given. New boys must join at once. The financial obligations are very slight. All that is asked is parental interest and cooperation with Mr. Bennett.

CHURCH BOARD PLANS PROGRAM

The executive board of the Methodist church met Wednesday night to discuss plans for the season's work.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES

Next Sunday morning, the Rev. J. H. Bennett will discuss the "Question of the Certainty of God." It is important to return to this most fundamental thing of all, the fact of God, if we are not to lose in all of life the most potent of all influences, the pastor announces.

"This wonderful age in which we live has many factors in it that tend to rebel against real thought here. Yet the situation is a challenging one to all who want to know. Especially is the best youth of today anxious to challenge the shallow generation around us. The growth of the many sects are on every hand presenting to the people interpretations of truth and traditionalisms that are only in accord with a passing age, is one of the results of this shallowness.

"A world without God is impossible. But what kind of a God? A materialistic God of the traditional view? One who needs a book to keep records within, and a stated time in the history of the world in which to open that book?

"Is our God to be just a satisfying conception for a democracy that is wallowing in the mire of mediocrity?

"Are we to believe in a God who is dragged down to the level at which He is intellectually understood and emotionally satisfying to those who are neither purified in their perceptions, disciplined in their wills, nor cultivated in their minds?

"A world without God is unthinkable. What kind of a God do you believe in?"

The C. E. groups meet Sunday, 6:30 p. m. There will be no evening service this Sunday. A rearrangement of the evening program is being considered.

Rev. Bennett will be in Fairfax this Friday evening to conduct a young people rally at the Congregational church.

Over 20 of the junior members of the church met this Wednesday for their first monthly study for the session. Fifteen were not there for various reasons. The meetings will be held on the first Wednesday

OBSERVATIONS OF THE REV. BENNETT

(Notes from a recent sermon)

Everyone recognizes the beauty of the spirit of conciliation. It is a disposition that is both gracious and winsome. It does not sit erect upon the lofty and unapproachable seat nor speak in "Ex Cathedra" tones in terms of final dogma or decree.

It is a spirit that enters our council chambers or lives within the confines of our homes with the deepest intentions of true fellowship and with the truest desire to see the many aspects of truth that various minds may hold.

1 It has the spirit of lenity.

This word has the touch of spring about it. It woos and encourages. It forbids the touch of winter's blast to stay the progress of spring.

2 It has the spirit of moderation.

It does not lose the sense of the proportion of things. It is not lost in shrieking emphases. But with a quiet eye observes the touch and tone of life.

3 It has the grace of tenderness.

It does not move in the garden of truth as a wild beast trampling down every possible thing with a heedless heel. But uses every opportunity of the gardener's skill to produce the best.

These are some of the beauties in the MINISTRY OF CONCILIATION and such a ministry is needed today. But there are some dangers that in brief I would mention.

1 Mere dislike of differences.

To accept a situation or to leave it alone are two methods. But it is quite possible that in doing so you fail in your duty. There may arrive a time in every person's life when another course is demanded of us. We cannot refuse to use the strong arm of right thinking and action simply because we dislike differences. It is wrong to hold a point of view that leads to persecution, but it is also wrong to hold no point of view that leaves things at a loose end.

Another danger is our DESIRE TO PLEASE PEOPLE.

This would barter the august treasures of the soul for the claims of personal comfort or security.

Another danger is mistaking sentiment for love.

Sentiment is good when it becomes the channel for our best emotions, but when it becomes only the sweet things in life, and not the meat of life, the pastry, not the bread of life, the wine, but not the water, it fails.

Today we cannot fail to be men of conciliation. But not because we dislike differences nor desire to please others nor because we possess mawkish sentiments, but because we believe in God. Because we believe in the MORAL MAJESTY of God. Jesus possessed all the glorious attributes of a conciliatory spirit. And yet He was fierce in His opposition in His day too many things that we today regard as unimportant. Robbing the orphans and widows of life; irreverence towards life itself. He was gently and forgiving towards many things that we today regard as worthy of persecution. He was the King of Righteousness but also He was the Prince of Peace. It was His justice and mercy that gave to Him the loving characteristics of forgiveness and the moral distinctions of love.

Hallowe'en Spirit Reigns At Party Of Local Guild

"How many seeds has a pumpkin?"

"Oh, that's easy," thought everybody at the party of the Congregational Women's guild Thursday, but no one could guess as close as Mrs. Ira McConnell did. So she won the prize.

Hallowe'en with all its traditions was celebrated by the guild members, who were entertained in the church parlors by the Alpha group, under the leadership of Mrs. Worthin Grattan.

After the business meeting, presided over by Miss Jessie Lewis, president of the guild, Mrs. F. R. Anderson took charge of the afternoon, acting for Mrs. Harry C. Smith, who was unable to be present.

Mrs. Ira McConnell appropriately recited "The Pumpkin" by Whittier. Musical numbers by Miss Betty Keesling and Miss Olga Brydon were greeted with appreciation.

Games added zest to the afternoon. Spunky Hallowe'en cats were discovered to have relatives in numerous words in the dictionary. A game of "Fortune" added the necessary touch of mystery.

Beautiful Hallowe'en decorations gave color to the party and delicious refreshments of coffee, cheese and pumpkin pie furnished that satisfied feeling.

FARLEY PRESIDES OVER HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT MEETING

With Phillip Farley, president of the student body presiding, and Mr. N. O. Best of the faculty as chairman, students of the Campbell Union High school met in the grammar school auditorium Tuesday morning for their regular monthly meeting.

Selections by the high school orchestra were enjoyed as the first numbers, after which Principal D. H. Cramer reviewed the accomplishments of graduates since the district was formed in 1900, many of whom are holding responsible positions in various lines of endeavor.

President Farley outlined the plans and hopes of the student body for the coming year, stressing the necessity for competent class officers, the need of less rowdism at basket-ball and other games, a closer bond of co-operation between students and faculty to the end that better support would be given to both old and new institutions.

Lulu Caldwell emphasized the necessity of more interest being evidenced in all branches of girl athletics, pointing out the individual benefits derived and the better school spirit created.

Mr. Best, chairman, explained the purpose of the student body, pointing out that there were certain well established ideals that should be observed, all of which can only be accomplished if there is a definite program and objectives. He urged all students to cooperate fully with all class and school officers so that all plans could be carried through to a definite conclusion.

Billy Rambo was called on to explain the plan of scholarship awards and suggested possible changes that might make for fairer competition.

VISITS BROTHER

R. H. Knappen returned Sunday afternoon from Marysville, where he spent several days with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Knappen.

Six Champions Enter Speedway Sunday Classic

San Jose, Oct. 13 Six of the country's doughtiest knights of the roaring road have already entered the 100-lap classic scheduled at the San Jose speedway Sunday afternoon, Oct. 16, it was announced today by Linn Mathewson, manager of the plant.

The list includes "Babe" Stapp, Lester Spangler, Ernie Triplett, Kelly Petillo, Sam Palmer and Chet Gardner. Stapp won the 60-lap main event at the San Jose speedway on Sept. 25, while Spangler took the first 100-lap race held on the San Jose oval this year.

Old man "Hard Luck" has been dogging Triplett's heels here in the last two races held. The 1931 Pacific coast champion broke an axle while pressing Spangler hard for the lead in the 100-lap race, while on the 25th of last month he was forced to relinquish first place to Stapp when his instrument board dropped into his lap, making it impossible for him to control his car at high speeds.

NEIL DELIVERS FOURTH LECTURE ON "TRUE CHURCH"

A fourth lecture identifying the "True Church" was given Sunday night at the Community hall by Evangelist J. Lee Neil. He restated that it is not consistent nor scriptural to think that one Holy Spirit is inspiring nearly five hundred different churches or denominations, each thinking they have the truth and are appointed of God to teach it.

"Since God has made His church or earthly representatives the gate keeper to heaven it is of first importance to know how to know who has the keys," Mr. Neil asserted.

He declared that in the book of Revelation, Chapter 12, verse 17,

HERBERT JONES TO GIVE ADDRESS AT CLUB MEETING

The next meeting of the Campbell Country Woman's Club, scheduled for Monday, Oct. 17, will be a meeting open to all ladies of the community.

Topic of the day: "Amendments to the State Constitution." The speaker is Senator Herbert Jones, California's foremost authority on constitutional legislation.

The committee in charge of the program includes Mrs. A. W. Johnson, chairman; Mrs. H. P. Bean, and Mrs. Laura Foster.

there are two unmistakable signs of the last true church of Jesus Christ. Its members, first, keep all of God's commandments, and second, have the Spirit of Prophecy.

Last Sunday night was given to examining the evidence that supports Mrs. E. G. White of the Seventh Day Adventist church, as a true prophetess. Both physical and spiritual tests as given in the Bible were brought to bear. The evidence is accessible to any who may be interested, Mr. Neil reports.

Next Sunday night a most interesting lecture is promised on "Spiritualism." Can we talk with the dead?

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES

A Hallowe'en party will be given by the members of the Junior Christian Endeavor in the Congregational church parlors Friday night. In charge of the function are the social committee, including Edwin Kersgard, Milton Bohrman, Barbara Van Every, and Olivia Valencia.

Officers of the junior and intermediate Christian Endeavors will be installed at next Sunday's regular meetings. Installation service was postponed last Sunday because of the illness of the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Bennett.

The Harriet Windsor group of the Congregational Women's guild met with Mrs. Horace Person at her home today. Mrs. Person was in charge of the business meeting.

The Alpha group of the Congregational guild will meet Thursday, Oct. 20, at the home of Mrs. H. C. Smith.

The Utili Dulci group of the guild will meet with Mrs. Ben Austin, Thursday, Oct. 20, at 2 p. m. A good attendance is desired as this is the first meeting since vacation, and plans for the fall work should be made.

GOVERNMENT AND BUSINESS

Dealing with Governor Roosevelt's utilities speech in Portland, Ore., recently, the Middletown (Conn.) Press handled the subject sensibly in an editorial, when it said:

"... His address may be said to be in a decidedly liberal direction, with a disposition to favor government operation, under certain conditions; yet always, as in his other addresses, a degree of reservation is offered to quiet possible eastern fears, even as there is a desire to impress the radicals of the west.

"And it is one of the most significant things in this whole utilities question that where government interference has been more marked, as in the most of the west, the losses have been heaviest . . .

"Where the governor differs with a reasonable conservatism, which time and time again has been tested as the wiser policy, is in now demanding greater governmental power over utilities companies and in giving to communities fuller cooperation to enter into competition with private operation, especially when such operation is expensive and unsatisfactory.

"In one way there can be no objection to going so far. On the other hand, with the experience the nation, the states and the minor communities have with government operations, there are millions of reasonable persons who hesitate to entrust additions to such operation and its attendant political manipulation.

"There is the additional fact to remember, one always ignored by those who favor public ownership, that is the loss of taxes under public operation, not only for the local government, but for the state and nation as well.

"Governor Roosevelt's general attitude on utilities may be classed as greater interference with private operation. It urges that all the states give their commissions more power in that direction. Here again hovers the threat of incompetence, politics and radicalism. One can understand how a commission with reasonable disinterested non-political officials upon it, would be helpful. On the other hand, positive harm would attend with a membership exactly opposite, as is not unfrequently the case . . .

"In general, the governor aims for greater regulation and more publicity . . . Yet it has not been lost on all that this utilities industry has been one which has held up in these times better than almost any other."

It might be well to recall the burlesque government operation of railroads during the World war by the Democratic administration with McAdoo, one of the present leaders, behind Governor Roosevelt at the throttle. During the experiment the railroad facilities of our nation were demoralized and operated at a distinct loss, the load falling on the taxpayers of the nation and the stockholders and owners of the railroads. This attempt at government operation and control of railroads crippled that industry for years, and the more than two million railroad workers have been among those who have suffered most from the experiment.

The thing that has gradually been and is wrecking the nation's industry, directly affecting farmers, labor and industry of all kinds, is the gradual but increased control of the nation's business by the government. What the people of the United States want is not more control over their private business, but less government in business. If we are to have government operation of business in this country, why not bring the entire program out under its true colors of socialism and let the people vote on the question shorn of all camouflage?

FAIR REASONING

In discussing the subject of public utility rates and the problems relating to utility companies, there is such a tendency to be prejudiced by personal or political angles, that it is refreshing to read a statement of the Public Service commission of West Virginia in replying to a request of the house of delegates of that state to make a downward revision in all public utility rates under its jurisdiction. It said:

"Notwithstanding a belief possessed by a few that the commission can fix rates at its will and pleasure, the fact is that it has no such autocratic power . . . Investigation, hearing and due process do not contemplate a judicial proceeding . . . It is an orderly fact-finding procedure to enable the state to conform to the standards of equity and fair-dealing which are the foundation of our social, economic and political system. It would be futile, therefore, for the commission to submit to your honorable body . . . a revision of rates for the use by the public of property representing an investment of about 666 million dollars, without sufficient facts on which to base it . . .

Rate regulation is a continuing process. Its success must depend upon the capacity and will of the state to match the technical skill of those who represent the public service corporation in establishing accurate accounting, making fair and just appraisals and applying practical economies under the principles of due process of law . . .

This is a masterpiece of fair reasoning by a public body, sworn to protect the rights of all its citizens, who include producer and investor as well as consumer.

SILVER—YOUR PROBLEM

The silver problem isn't a distant and remote matter that never touches the life and welfare of the average man. It's everybody's problem—and it's your problem.

Anything that affects international trade, the buying power of nations, and the free flow of commerce, affects every job, every industry, every home. Silver is the medium of exchange of countries comprising half the world's people. When it has a fair value, those people buy goods from other countries and help keep the factory chimneys of all the world smoking. When its value is depressed, as at present, those people no longer have the money with which to buy.

There isn't enough gold in existence to carry on world commerce—and no major additional supplies are known. In a stable world silver must have its place as a money, and its value in relation to gold must be definite and permanent. It's time the family of nations went hard to work on the problem—and when they do that, and solve it, it will mean money in your pocket.

THE FARMERS CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

The demand of California taxpayers for elimination of waste and duplication in government already has produced beneficial results in many localities, with the added promise that a veritable deluge of economy proposals will greet the state legislature when it convenes in January.

A proposal of especial interest to agriculture, because agriculture must pass on its advisability, is the plan recently advanced by Dr. Joseph J. King, chief of the state division of animal industry, to establish a uniform dairy inspection service under state auspices.

King's program, which he estimates will save the taxpayers some $2,000,000 annually, contemplates complete elimination of the present system of duplicate dairy inspections by the state, cities and counties.

The desire to eliminate duplication in inspection is entirely commendable, but the plan is naturally being subjected to most careful scrutiny by the dairymen and the dairymen's organizations because of its fundamental and far-reaching changes.

Briefly summarized, the King proposal contemplates:

1 Elimination of cities and counties from the field of dairy farm inspection, the cities retaining authority within their own city limits. All present charges for field inspection of dairy cows, plants, equipment and personnel would be abolished.

2 Placing of dairy inspection and bovine tuberculosis control on a self-supporting basis by licensing owners of dairy cattle at the rate of $1 per head per annum. This, it is estimated, would return a revenue of $800,000 per year.

3 Increasing the state's share of indemnity paid for reactors from one-third to two-thirds of appraised value, the final one-third to be paid by the federal government. All tuberculin testing of dairy cattle to be conducted free, the state employing practicing veterinarians to test cattle in their immediate vicinity. Heavy traveling expenses would be eliminated by locating men in each county, the state absorbing as many city and county inspectors as possible.

The fund created by the license fee of $1 per head on dairy cattle, according to King, would more than take care of state-wide dairy inspection, general disease control, and more rapid tuberculin testing and payment of indemnities. This would mean the elimination of large appropriations by the cities and counties, he said, and would also make the division of animal industry virtually self-supporting.

Questions which the dairy groups are considering include:

Will the dairyman, under the $1 tax on each dairy animal, pay more or less than he now pays in state, county and city inspection fees?

What benefits will accrue to the dairymen who have already cleaned up their herds, and who would, under this plan, contribute to the cost of the state-wide tuberculosis eradication program?

And, finally, can the $1 per head license fee be reduced when the major part of the tuberculosis eradication work has been accomplished, and what assurance can be given that such reduction will become effective?

If these questions are satisfactorily answered, and if the economies claimed for the program are real, the King plan may well merit support as a step toward elimina-

BOOKS

HEAD TIDE, by Joseph C. Lincoln

Opening the covers of this book is like taking a speedy journey to Cape Cod, there to enjoy the tang of sea breezes and the spunk of old sea salts and their village neighbors.

Mr. Lincoln knows how to spin a good yarn. Head Tide is no exception. Franklin Cobb, its hero, brings to his inheritance of a small country newspaper a great deal of independence and plain grit.

Consequently he somewhat astonished the powers that rule his village by refusing to support their wiggling, wavering political tricks. A book cannot be dull which contains, as this one does, good rousing fights between parties and men.

Character delineation is Mr. Lincoln's best talent. Perhaps his characters are a bit stereotyped, but they are delightful nevertheless. Old tars, village lords, prim old maids, and charming girls add humor, drama, and romance to this latest tale.

THE FANTASTIC CITY—Amelia Ransome Neville.

"Would you like to go to a ball, my dear, and meet Lord So-and-So and his charming daughter, and the Prince of Such-and-Such?"

This is what one can hear Mrs. Neville murmuring, in oh, a very genteel voice, as one reads her biography, which is really a story of San Francisco in the good old days.

Most people prate quite learnedly about San Francisco's Vigilantes, and its gambling halls and its reckless extravagance, during the glorious era of gold. But few of them have ever glimpsed the inside stories of the city's social belles.

Mrs. Neville was a belle; she lived the social whirl. She came to San Francisco as a bride of 17, in 1852 and she enjoyed life in "the wickedest city in the world." Her book presents fascinating glimpses of how "the other half" lived then.

Fascinating personalities came to San Francisco during its adolescence. Princes in disguise hobnobbed with miners who struck it rich. Saloon kings discussed art with dry-goods millionaires. But always the women preserved their proprieties.

Mrs. Neville describes gleefully the dainty gowns she wore as she proceeded solemnly up the hills of the bay city to make her daily social calls. She is happy because Paris gowns could be bought in the rude shacks which called themselves stores.

If you care to feel on intimate terms with the great and near-great of history, you'll find it a lot of fun to read this book.

LOS GATOS HIGH STARTS CLASSES IN LIP READING

Classes in lip reading began in the Los Gatos Union High school, Oct. 10, at 2 o'clock. Both advanced and beginners work are offered. Everyone with even a very slight hearing loss should take advantage of this opportunity.

The class is being conducted by Mrs. Ruth McKinley who taught for many years in the Los Gatos High school and is well known in this vicinity. Last year she conducted a class in Los Gatos. For the past four years she has held classes in San Jose, and has been very successful.

tion of duplication in inspection services. Certain it is that the present duplication, which often forces a dairyman to undergo inspection at the hands of a dozen city, county and state inspectors, is both wasteful and irritating.
